FATALLY STABS A KEEPER

A Guard of the State Prison at Columbus, O., Badly Injured After Being Enticed Into the Cell of a Prisoner.

WEAPON MADE BY SHARPENING A PIECE OF WIRE.

The Assailant Has Sworn He Will Yet Kill the Warden--Some Time Ago He Attempted the Life of a Young Woman Bookkeeper.

There is a prisoner confined in the jail at Columbus, O., who is known to the officials of that institution as the Prison Demon. He is a wild, ungovernable person, and because of his evil disposition one of the guards, Samuel D. Blocker, of Summit county, lies at the point of death, with chances against his recovery, having been enticed by the unruly prisoner into the latter's cell and there cruelly stabbed with a weapon that penetrated five inches into the abdomen.

This is the prisoner who, by his vicious and blood-thirsty assaults on attaches of the prison, has recently become the most dangerous man in the penitentiary in the estimation of the officials.

He is about twenty-two years of age, and was sent from Montgomery county for burglary and larceny. For months he was the dread of fellow-prisoners because of his viciousness and ungovernable temper. About a year ago his first desperate attack was made on a young lady bookkeeper for a prison contracting firm.

He waylaid her and stabbed her a half dozen times, coolly wiping the knife upon his sleeve and replacing it in his pocket. She recovered, and he was given a twelve years' sentence for the crime. His threats against officials led to a ball and chain being placed on him.

His cunning and dexterity soon let him escape from this encumbrance at his will, and then he was placed in a cell. From this he escaped three times, in each case previously notifying the guards that he would do so.

In one of the instances he was found hiding behind a door through which the young woman must pass, armed with a half of a pair of scissors. In another instance he was in the guardroom leading to the warden's office, in search of this official, whose life he had declared he would have.

Once again he attempted to escape by digging out the wall, and was found armed with a knife. He was then removed to a steel cage specially prepared for him and another dangerous man. For some time the prison officials have known that saws had been passed to him, and they have been investigating the matter. He is a master in deception, and is as shrewd as a fox.

The other morning at an early hour, as Guard Blocker was passing the cage, the prisoner called to him that if he would come into the cage he would reveal to him in a quiet way who the prisoners were that had passed the saws in and what the plans were for the escape.

Blocker, anxious to learn those facts, and entertaining the idea possessed by other guards that the man was not so desperate as painted, entered the cell. When a few feet from the door the prisoner struck him a sharp blow in the abdomen, exclaiming:

"Go on out, I won't give it away."

Blocker thought he had been fooled and left the cage, feeling at the time a sting in his body which he thought was caused by the blow. In a short time he was taken with hemorrhages, which have since continued. The convict had taken the blade from a bucket, sharpened it until it was like a hat pin, and this penetrated the victim's bowels to a depth of over five inches. For some time past he has been on good behavior in an effort to secure his release from the cage, but his object, as known to prisoners, was to get an opportunity of killing the warden.

H. Klump has been well known on Greater New York alleys for a number of years. He is one of the hustling members of the United Bowling Clubs, and is doing a great amount of work to help this organization to retain its prestige. F. Outcault of the New York World, whose comic pictures are now running in the Sunday edition of said paper. Mr. Dinkins is also interested with Mr. Louis Robie in two well-known burlesque shows known as "The Knickerbockers" and she wore a thick veil, which completely hid her features. Shortly afterward she made her appearance on the strand clad in a charming costume, which revealed every line of her shapely figure, but those who gazed in admiration were wonder-struck when she turned her head, and they saw that her face was covered by a mask. She did not promenade the beach, but at once entered the surf, where she disputed for nearly half an hour, meantime attracting general attention by reason of the strangeness of her attire.

The masked beauty then returned to her bath house, emerging therefrom with her face still hidden by the veil. Some say that she is a society belle, more used to the exclusiveness of Newport's beach than the democracy of the Atlantic City strand, and that, therefore, she does not wish her identity known. Others aver that, although her form is shapely, yet her face has been disfigured by an accident, and that she does not wish to bare it to the public gaze, while those of a more practical turn opine that the mask is simply a complexion preserver. At all events the masked bather is the talk of the day.

him at once, but she refused. He tried to argue with her, but it was no use.

"All right, then," he said, "we'll settle this matter right here," and drawing a revolver, he fired a shot at her head. The bullet struck her behind the left ear, plowed through the head and lodged in the nose. She ran, screaming and bleeding, into the house and fell unconscious to the floor, where she was found by neighbors, who were aroused by the shots.

The woman recovered sufficiently to say that he had shot her. Soon after he was found dead in the paint shop, with a bullet in his brain. She was removed to the Allentown Hospital, and his body was given in charge of his parents.

A Lot of Good Wine Was Spilled

LIKE A SURPRISE PARTY.

They Drove Out the Men and Barred the Doors of the Place.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

The town of Kingston, Mo., has just passed through the hottest time of its existence, and there is more excitement there just now than if a half dozen circuses were in town to play the same date. Half the men in town are wondering what is going to happen next, and the other half are looking on and enjoying what they call the fun.

There is a place in town which is a saloon and gambling room combined, and which has, since its existence, been run rather quietly. This place has been the resort of many good fellows who wanted a little of that recreation which their homes could not offer them.

Their attendance became so regular, and their absence from their firesides became so marked that their wives and daughters took the matter up and began an investigation, the result of which might have been easily foreseen.

The women accidentally learned the sign of admittance to the place, and the other day a couple of them went and gave the peculiar knocks which were necessary to open the door.

They got in all right. One of them found her father and the other discovered her sweetheart.

Then came a hot time. There were about fifteen other men in the place and they were so excited that they jumped out of windows, twelve feet to the ground below.

A lot of good wine, worth $4 per bottle, was spilled and wasted, but pupa and the sweetheart went out with the girls.

A day or so later there was another raid, and although most of the men skipped, some little resistance was offered to the petticoated raiders.

One of the women was forcibly ejected. The men who escaped from the room this time scattered the chairs and broke the table before they could get to the roof and jump down to the ground. The women had the doors barred, and were determined to clean out the place.

A day after that the women held a meeting and determined to make a final raid. They marched up the street in a body to the place. This time the men got wind of the visit, and before the women reached there not a soul was to be found and the rooms deserted. The women held the fort and refused to go until induced to do so by several citizens. They say they are determined to close up the place if it takes bloodshed to do so.

THRILLING FALL FROM A BALLOON.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

A balloon ascension at Troy, N. Y., recently, almost resulted in a tragedy, and the thousands of persons who were interested spectators thought surely the young woman aeronaut would be dashed to death. As it was she was badly injured.

The balloon was not properly inflated, and when it was first cut loose it did not rise above the tree tops, and the woman was entirely at the mercy of the strong wind which was blowing. She made frantic efforts to free the parachute, but at first could not.

She was carried from Troy to Brunswick, an excited crowd following. Suddenly the balloon swooped down and came in contact with some telegraph wires. Then a thrilling scene followed.

The wind swept the balloon downward and across the street, but the wires kept the woman and the car in midair. Scores of people rushed to the scene, but were unable to assist her. She called pitifully for aid. Finally the force of the wind caused the parachute ropes to break and she fell to the ground.

She was picked up, carried into a house and doctors summoned. She was unconscious, and it was more than an hour before she recovered.

She complained of intense pain in back and feet. It was learned that several ribs were broken and one arm fractured.

She was taken later to the Samaritan Hospital.

PRETTY HALF-BREED GIRL

IN AN EXCESS OF JEALOUSY AND ANGER

KILLS THE MAN SHE LOVED

She Had Been Deserted by Her White Lover for Another Girl Who Was More Beautiful, and She Wanted Revenge.

DROPPED ICE WATER ON HIS HEAD UNTIL HE DIED.

His Body Was Found Two Days Later by a Posse of Officers Who Had Been Notified of His Mysterious Disappearance.

There is a half-breed young woman in jail in the Indian Territory, who is charged with a most extraordinary and remarkable crime. The case has created considerable excitement throughout the country.

She is accused of fastening her sweetheart, a white man, in a small closet in her house, which was just large enough to hold him, and then through a hole in the ceiling above she dropped ice water on his bare head until he died.

She has, it is said, told the whole story, and the officers who have her in charge say she doesn't seem to regret her position in the least.

According to the story as told when her lover disappeared, she planned his death with the utmost coolness.

She is a good looking young woman, with just a trace in her complexion of Indian parentage. She has black eyes and hair, fair complexion and a pretty figure. She attended school for a number of years, and is well educated—far better, indeed, than most of her people.

The man in the case was a young merchant, one of the few white traders who did business in that section of country. He met her last summer, and is said to have fallen in love with her at first sight. She, on the other hand, seemed to reciprocate his affection.

It looked from the start like a love match. There came a change, however, when the merchant met another girl, whose beauty seemed to have the greater power. Then he began to neglect his first love.

One night, not long ago, she sent a note to her recreant lover, asking him to call on her. She was alone, her parents having gone away on visit.

"It is the last time I will ever ask a favor of you," she is said to have written, "so please come early as I have so many important things to say to you."

The young man answered the note in person. What follows is best told in the words of the alleged confession which she is said to have made to the jailor of the prison, where she is said to be confined.

"He came and we talked of every-day events for a while; then I asked him why he had commenced going with that other girl. He gave me a short answer and said it was none of my business. That made me mad, and I was tempted to shoot him dead then and there. But I did not forget my first purpose—to torture him to death. So I smiled sweetly and passed it off. I told him that I had another fellow and we'd just let things pass. He seemed pleased, and said that would be best.

"Then I brought out the wine which I had drugged and asked him to drink with me and forget. I was surprised he did not suspect something then, as he was always so quick to catch on, but he did not, and drank the wine right down.

"In a few minutes the drugs had done their work and he fell asleep. I tied his hands and shoved him into the closet."

The closet which she mentions is a small one in one corner of the dining-room. It is just large enough to hold the body of a person of average size, standing up straight. There are shelves running back some six inches on all sides, except where the door opens, and on these shelves were kept the wine and chinaware.

When he was pushed in and the door locked he was wedged in tight and had no room to move, not even to turn around. He tried to do this when being tortured, and his broken ribs show for it. Then the alleged confession is continued as follows:

"After I had locked him in I went upstairs and took off the trap door I had sawed myself."

This trap door opened into her bedroom from the closet, and was the same size as the interior of the closet. Underneath her then appeared the head of her white lover. The light hair on his head was very thin, which served doubly her purpose.

"Then I carried up a tub of ice water, and, bringing a high stepladder, commenced my work. I dropped the water out of a pitcher for fourteen hours nearly, and all the while he begged me to stop. Whenever he would move his head to one side I would change the position of my hand, so that I never missed a drop during the whole time. Suddenly he became quiet, after I had dropped nearly all the water in the tub, which was kept ice cold by a large piece of ice. I commenced on Monday night, and about noon next day he was dead. I am glad to say his last words were a prayer for my forgiveness."

The young man was not missed from his place of business until two days later, and then his former sweetheart, it is said, gave the alarm.

Officers started out in search of him, and at night they found him, it is said, dead on the dining room floor. His head and clothes were wet. The girl was discovered, so the story goes, upstairs asleep.

It is said she had opened the closet door after finding him dead and let the body fall out on the floor, so her parents or some one would discover it. Then she went to bed and was sleeping soundly when from the police force, as evidenced by the comparatively insignificant number of depredations of all character committed within the city limits during his incumbency.

Mr. Leslie has a pleasing personality, the knack of attracting and retaining friends, and has, by his actions, thoroughly imbued others with a sense of his ability and integrity.

He has been identified with public affairs in the city of Pittsburg for almost twenty years, having held the office of alderman of the Seventeenth ward for sixteen years, and was successively deputy mayor and police magistrate. This service thoroughly equipped him for the position he so acceptably fills, in that he is familiar with the laws of the State of Pennsylvania and the ordinances of the city of Pittsburg, and has also had a wide experience in the administering of justice. In the latter he was ever ready to be convinced of the culprit's innocence, but never hesitated to impose punishment where merited.

His election as president of the National Association of Chiefs of the United States and Canada on May 10, 1899, was an unexpected and gratifying honor, as he is comparatively new in the deliberations of that association; and his selection will undoubtedly revert to the credit of that organization and give it renewed and increased impetus.

The Bandits Had Held Up a Train in New Mexico.

AN OUTLAW WAS KILLED, TOO

Fierce Fight at Cimarron, N. M., Which Lasted an Hour.

A pitched battle took place the other day between a sheriff's posse and the gang of outlaws who held up a Colorado and Southern passenger train at Folsom, N. M., a few days ago. The affray occurred near Cimarron. The attacking party consisted of Sheriff "Ed" Farr, Special Officer W. H. Reno, of Denver; F. H. Smith, of New York, who was at Cimarron and volunteered to go; H. N. Love, an employee of Charles Springer; Stockman J. H. Morgan and Perfecto Cordova, of Colfax County, N. M.; Capt. Thacker, special agent of the Wells-Fargo Company at Springer, all under the direction of United States Marshal Foraker, of New Mexico.

The three train robbers were overtaken in the canyon twelve miles above Cimarron. They were preparing to go into camp and replied in the negative to a demand to surrender. A fight then ensued, in which about fifty shots were exchanged.

Sheriff "Ed" Farr received the first wound in the wrist, but bandaged it and renewed the battle. He was shot a second time through the body and fell dead. F. H. Smith, another member of the posse, was shot through the leg. H. N. Love sustained a dangerous wound through the thigh. The firing lasted about forty-five minutes.

The dead body of one of the train robbers has been conveyed to Cimarron, N. M., from the scene of the fight and was afterward taken to Springer, where an inquest was held.

The dead man was known by the name of William McGinnis, alias G. W. Franks, and came from Magdalene, N. M., where he was known as "Broncho Buster." The other two robbers abandoned their horses and are being pursued in the hills by a posse of twenty men.

lightweight championship of New Jersey the other morning at daybreak on the banks of the Baratar river. The backers, handlers and 100 sports landed from a tug, pitched an 18-foot ring, and in the sixth round of a very scientific and fast fight Peaker's second threw up the sponge. The referee awarded the fight to Morris, making the fourth straight victory for him inside of eight months. Prof. Boyle wants to match Morris against "Joe" Gans or any other colored lightweight in the world.

CHAMPION JEFFRIES

WHO IS MATCHED TO FIGHT CHARLEY MITCHELL

TALKS ABOUT HIS FUTURE

Realizes That as the Recognized Holder of the Title His Duty is to Fight Every Legitimate Challenger.

SUMPTUOUS ACCOMMODATIONS FOR HIM ON THE SHIP.

Eminence in the Pugilistic Profession Commands Attention Which Royalty Might Envy—All Bow to the Man of Mighty Muscle.

"Jim" Jeffries is going to England on a vacation and incidentally to show the blooming Britishers just how he knocked the jolly tar out of "Bob" Fitzsimmons and captured the enviable distinction of being called champion of the world and wearing the "Police Gazette" Diamond Belt, emblematic of the title. Jeffries has been sojourning at his home in Los Angeles, Cal., for a month past. He left there a week ago bound for Europe. He stopped off at Cincinnati long enough to give an exhibition last Sunday afternoon. He arrived here a day later and to-morrow he will board the Fuerst Bismarck, of the Hamburg-American line, and sail away for "furrin parts." He will journey across the dark blue sea in a style somewhat different from that in which his early ancestors left Ireland to carve out fortunes in the New World. They were quite content to come in the dark and cavernous depths of a slow sailing vessel, but none of them had attained championship honors of any description.

It is different with a mighty and victorious pugilist. When "Jimmy" boards the Fuerst Bismarck to-morrow he will be escorted with great humility on the part of the ship's servants to a luxurious stateroom on the upper deck, which has been relinquished in his favor by one of the officers.

He will be the recipient of all the honors awarded to true muscular greatness, and if there are any such small fry as foreign ambassadors on board they will be made to keenly feel their own inferiority. Mr. Jeffries will come pretty near owning the Fuerst Bismarck on this voyage.

Successful pugilism, like successful anything else, has its sweets. Mr. Jeffries, in officers' quarters on the Fuerst-Bismarck, will enjoy himself vastly more than when hammering rivets in a Los Angeles boiler shop.

Jeffries spent his last night—how that line suggests a hanging—in New York at the Vanderbilt Hotel in company with "Billy" Delaney, "Matty" Clune, Martin Dowling, "Tommy" Ryan and a few kindred spirits, including the representative of the POLICE GAZETTE. Of course, the subject that was uppermost in the mind of every one present was pugilism, and that supremely important occasion when the now eminent premier of the upper-cut division swiped Mr. Fitzsimmons into oblivion in a thoroughly artistic and satisfactory manner was frequently referred to.

"It was the Tommy-Ryan punch that settled Fitzsimmons," said the burly champion. "Tommy is a great man, a great fighter, the best on earth. He showed me the trick. When I gave him that left in the eleventh round I thought I would plant another in the same place, but concluded to let him have the right. I think, though, the left would have finished him if I had left him alone."

"When I went up against Fitz at the start I was a little dubious. I had said I would lick him, but that was done to keep up my own courage, and it was confidence more than anything."

"In the second round I knew I had him. I then said to myself, 'I can lick this fellow.' But he gave me some rough punches. They say 'Fitz' can deliver a hard blow. Ugh; you bet he can. I was sore for many a day after the fight. He's a gentleman and a square fighter, every inch. He's game, too, and I can thank 'Tommy' Ryan for teaching me the trick that finished him."

"I could have done it before I did, but I wanted to be careful. I saw one or two openings that promised a knockout, but I wasn't taking any chances with such a shifty man. I realized before I went into the ring that if I didn't whip 'Fitz' my chance would be gone. No other big fighter would take me on if I got licked. There's Sharkey; I followed him for six months. He ignored me, laughed at me. Well [grinning], he'll sing a different tune when I get him in the ring in October."

"Will you accept a challenge from Corbett?"

"Humph! I'll take any of 'em on; I'll mention no names, but I'm open to fight. I'll fight any man in the world—in Europe, Australia or any old place. I don't say I'll lick 'em, but I'll give 'em a fight."

"How about McCoy?"

"I'll mention no names, but, as I say, I'm open to the whole world, one after the other. I'm not saying I'll fight after six weeks or two months, but I'm ready right now. Let them come on with their challenges and fix up the matter in the regular way. I'm agreeable to all brands."

A large number of telegrams were handed to the champion during the evening, the senders all wishing him bon-voyage and good luck.

"Here's one from my old mother," he exclaimed. "God bless her. I'm glad I've done something to make her proud of her boy. And I want to say right here I'm not going to do anything to change her opinion. John L. Sullivan is my ideal of a prize fighter, all except for one thing. I'm no 'usher' and you can bet drink would run me down the ladder."

"I shall conduct myself as a gentleman and show the world that the men of the prize ring are not all loafers. Even if I do make my living as a prize fighter, I'll prove that there is at least one gentleman in theistic business."

Jeffries will be accompanied abroad by "Billy" Delaney and his brother "Jack." He will train for the contest with Mitchell at Brighton, England, and the Californian Hercules is confident that he will polish off the former English boxing champion inside the prescribed limit. Since his victory over Fitzsimmons, Jeffries has been taking the best care of himself, and it continues to observe the rules of health should remain champion for many years to come. His action in making matches with Mitchell and Sharkey so quickly after winning the championship has made him many friends.

FRANK STEVENSON.

[WITH PORTRAIT.]

Frank Stevenson is one of the old-time sporting men of New York city, who still evinces interest enough in the pugilistic game to be present at the ringside on any and every important occasion. Before the Horton law and public boxing contests became the vogue, Frank was much in demand as a referee of prize fights. He enjoyed the confidence of the better class of sportcently followed up McGovern's victory over "Johnny" Richie, of Chicago, by fighting the latter a twenty-round draw.

HUMAN BRUTES

WITH AN APPETITE FOR BLOOD

AT BULL BAITING

Same People Denounce Pugilism and Call it Brutal.

REFINEMENT OF CRUELTY.

A Taste for Gore Which Incites Fiery Tempered Men to Murder.

While the people of Continental Europe, and Parisians particularly, are bitter in their denunciations of pugilism and fistic contests with gloves, decrying the sport as brutal and inhuman, they do not themselves hesitate to patronize bull fights and kindred pastimes which would not be permitted in any part of Great Britain or America. My attention has just been directed to the details of a fight between a huge lion and a powerful Spanish bull, which took place at Roubaix, near Paris, France, on July 15. Fortunately, for humanity's sake, the affair was a good deal of a fiasco, and the appetites of the bloodthirsty Gauls were left unsatisfied.

The lion did not fight as was anticipated, though for a few seconds there was a terrific combat, but it ended by the lion slinking into a corner and a toreador killing the bull.

An enormous throng witnessed the affair. Special trains were run from Paris and from the manufacturing towns of the north, and thousands of people poured into Roubaix. Seats in the boxes were sold for $25 apiece and the other prices were in proportion.

The lion was named Goliath. He was captured in Abyssinia six months ago and stands twenty centimetres above any other lion in Europe. He is eight years old.

The bull was a powerful Spanish one named Tenaito. He had never been conquered by a toreador, though he had often been in the ring. He was a very fierce animal, five and one-half years old.

The animals met in a large ring enclosed by a huge cage. When brought out the lion stalked majestically into the ring with a roar that shook the arena. The crowd cheered and the sound seemed to scare Goliath. Then the bull entered.

He stopped short as he saw the lion. For almost half a minute the two animals stared straight at each other. The audience hardly breathed. The silence could almost be felt.

Then the lion turned away indifferently. The spectators were astonished. So, apparently, was the bull. He looked at the lion and pawed the ground, gradually working himself into a rage.

Then he dashed at the lion. His sharp horns almost swept the ground as he rushed toward his opponent like a whirlwind. But the lion dodged and the horns missed him. He did not apparently realize the situation.

The bull turned and ran at him again. This time he gored. The lion turned and dashed away with a roar. The spectators furious, hissed and yelled "Coward!"

The bull plunged with head down and struck the lion again. With a fierce snarl the king of beasts sprang at him. His huge paws clasped the bull by the head and throat. For a few seconds there was a fight like a whirlwind. The spectators caught sight of gleaming teeth, shaggy mane and sharp horns mixed up in a cloud of dust as the animals struggled fiercely. They could see the muscular claws of the lion rending the flesh of the bull. Then the lion sprang to the ground and slunk into a corner.

The bull, with only one ear and shockingly mangled, pluckily followed. The lion would not fight any more. The spectators hissed and clamored for his death. For twenty minutes there was a riot and part of the audience burst into the ring as if to kill the lion. Others declared they had been cheated.

Finally to satisfy them, after the lion had entered his cage, a toreador engaged the bull and cleverly killed him.

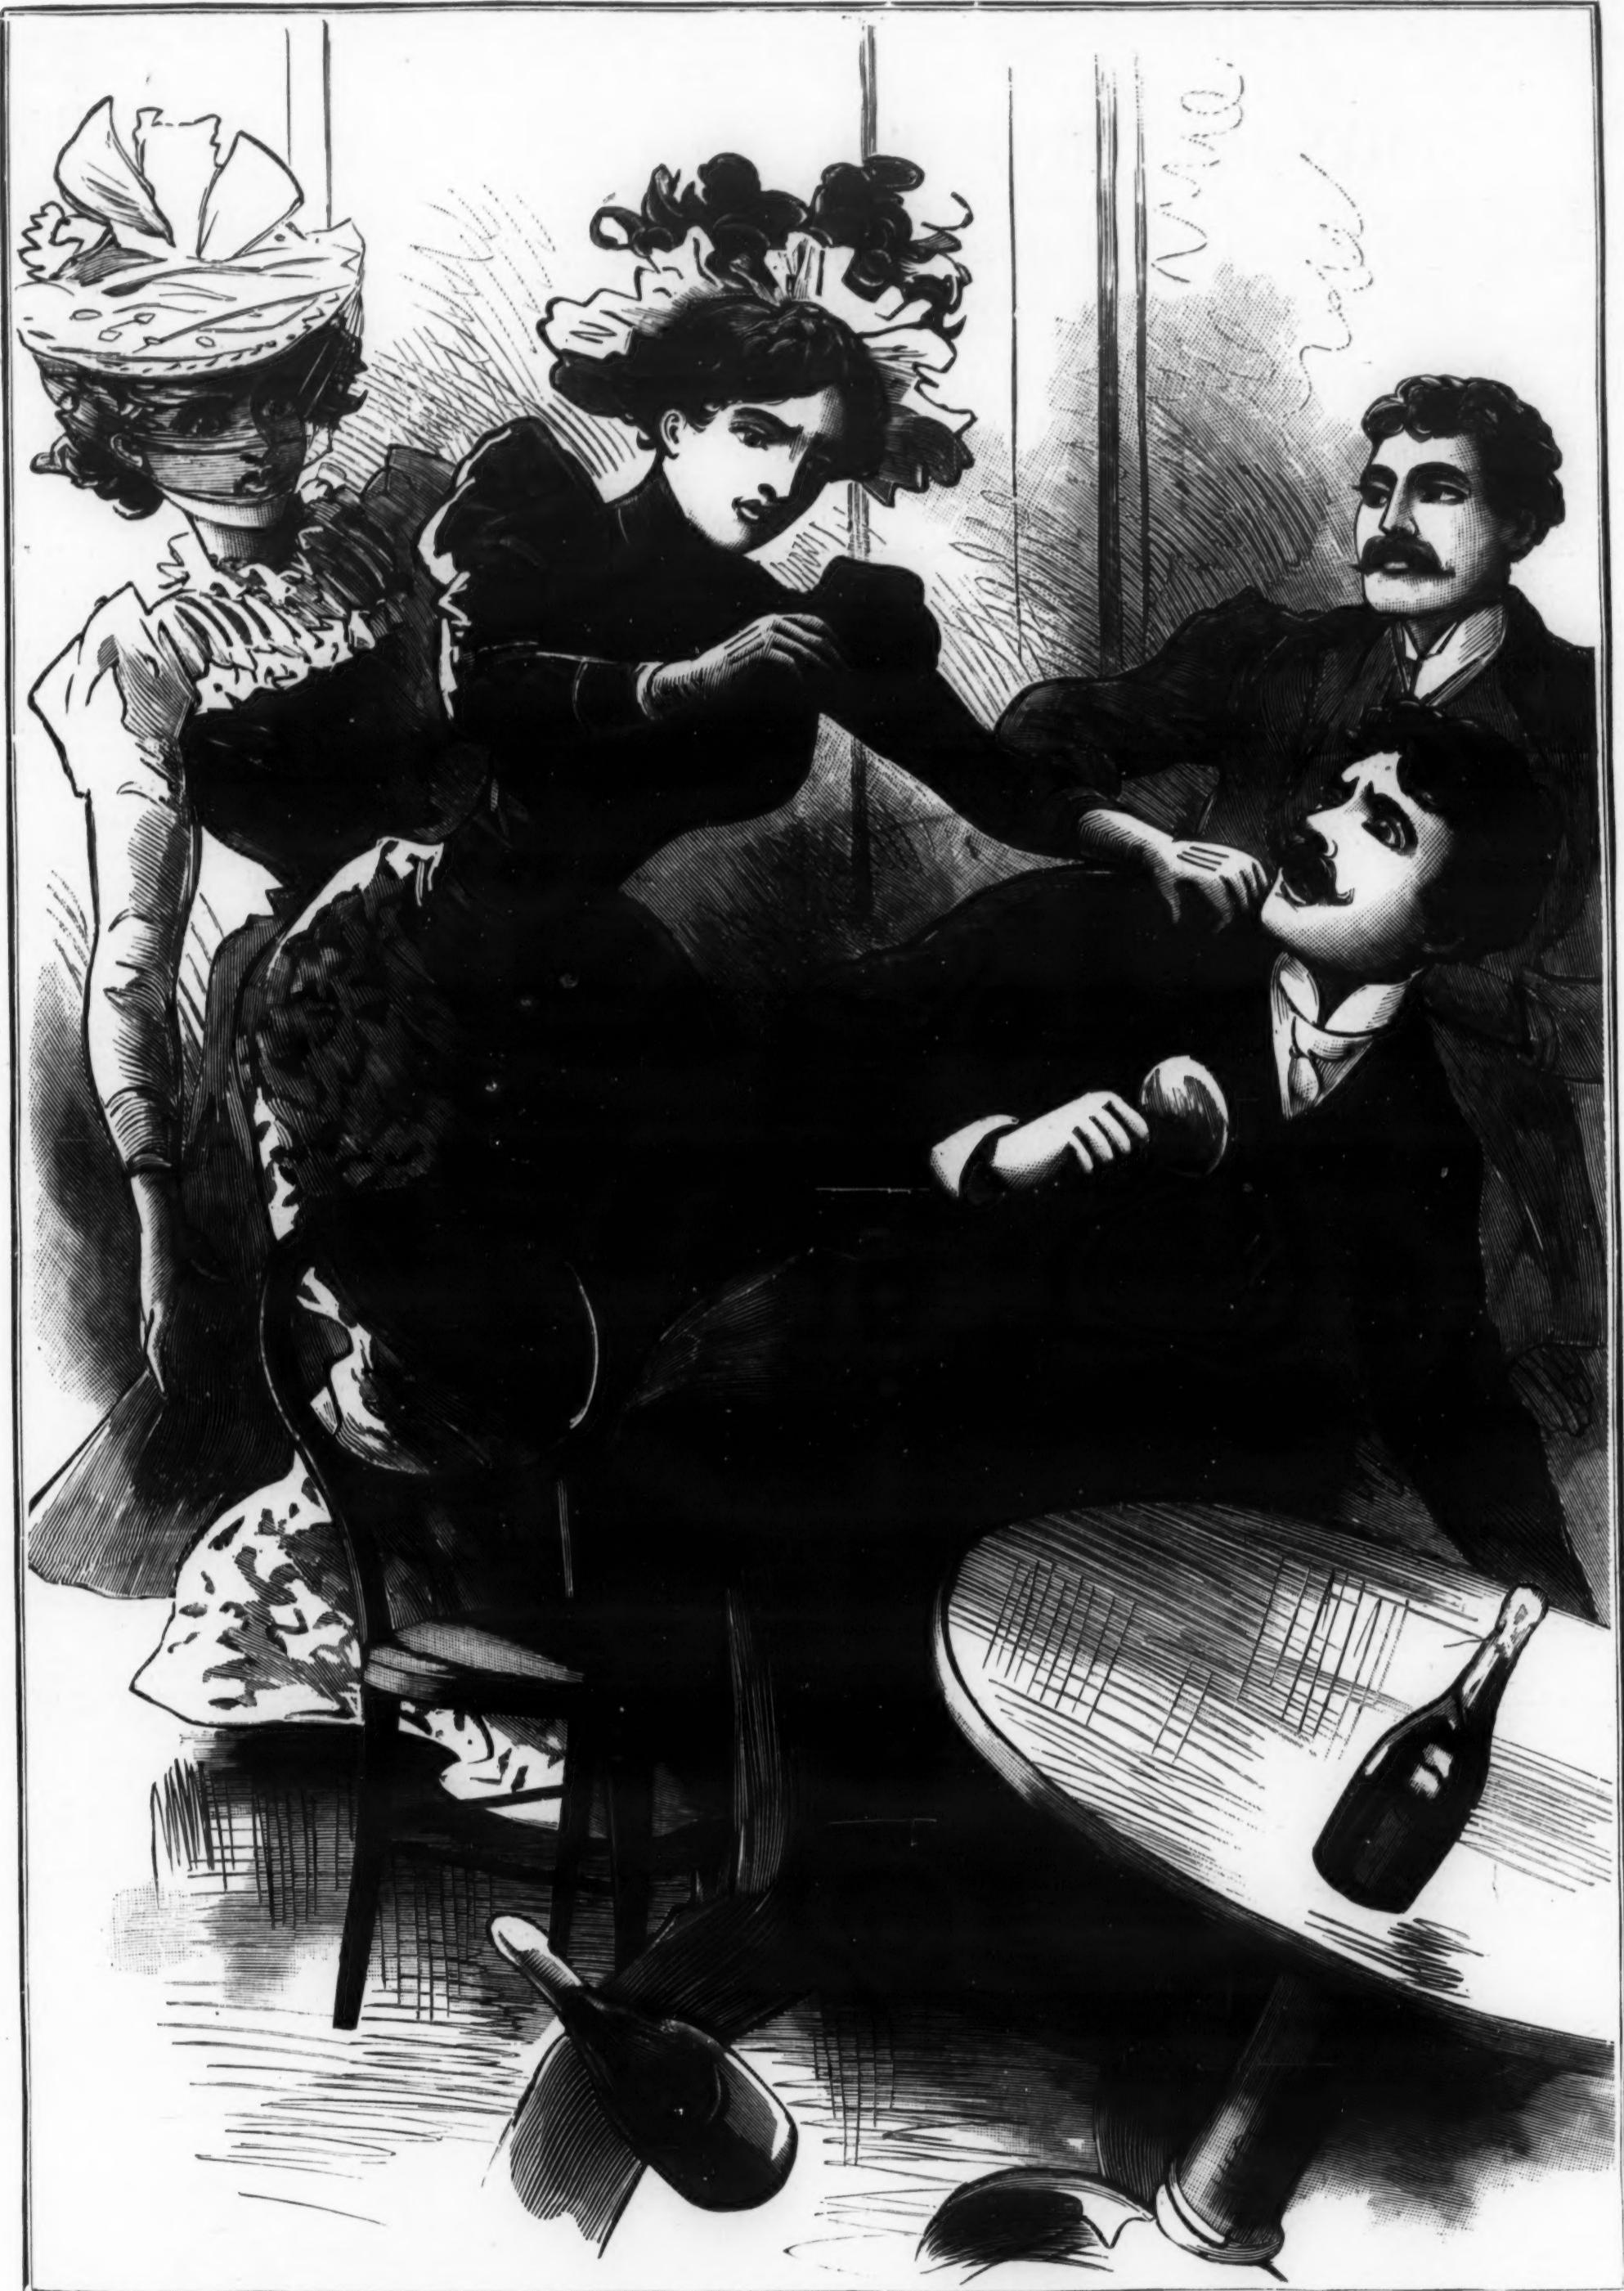

Civilization has not moved a step forward if the enlightened people of the effete East cannot discriminate between scientific pugilism and gory and disgusting affairs such as the one described. For those who prefer bull fighting, badger baiting and kindred amusements, scientific pugilism has no charm, for the reason that a knowledge of self-defense, as understood in English-speaking countries, is not appreciated by people who evince a preference for the stiletto, bludgeon, pistol or knife. Fighting with fists rarely terminates in anything more serious than temporary disablement, whereas the numerous quarrels where weapons are used almost invariably have a fatal result. English-speaking people are superior to the necessity of using weapons for purposes of self-defense. A sturdy fist, with an abundance of muscle behind it and a modicum of courage to use it, is far more advantageous for the purpose required. It is a latent appetite for blood which makes the people of Southern European countries revel in inhuman amusements, and it is the gratification of that sense which inures them to the sight of blood and makes them indifferent to the use of the stiletto and the knife.

On the morning of the day proposed the owner of Jerry says he cannot trust his horse as the animal has cut his ankle. When the hour arrives for the race to take place the horse Jerry does not show up, but Major is there ready. Is it not proper for the forfeit money to go to the owner of Major?....The owner of Major is entitled to the forfeit beyond all question.

P. H., Youngstown, Ohio--A bet B that Young Griffio bested "Jerry" Marshall three times. How many times did they fight, and who wins? Where was "Jimmy" Dime born? Did Peter Jackson make Peter Maher quit in two rounds?....The first, Dec. 24, 1892, Griffio winning in 12 rounds; second time on Feb. 28, 1893, 4 rounds. 2. Tipperary, Ireland. 3. Jackson and Maher sparred two exhibition rounds at Dublin, Ireland, in 1890, while Jackson was visiting that city.

I. S., Dallas, Tex.--I raffled three suits of clothes. The raffle to be decided by draw. The highest was to receive a suit of his own selection, the next highest a suit of his own selection, and the lowest a suit of his own selection. Two men threw 44, and one threw 42, and all three claim to be entitled to the two suits. Do the two who threw 44 get a suit each, or are they to decide between themselves as to who is the winner of high and let 42 come in for second highest?....The two who threw 44 throw over again for first and second choice; 42 is low man and is entitled to low prize only.

H. F., Phoenix, Ariz.--A bet that Harrison was elected as President of the United States in November, 1888; B bets that he was not elected at that time, and not until the Presidential Electors met and balloted for President and Vice-President was Harrison chosen; the election in November being to elect electors instead of the President himself?....The election of Harrison electors virtually elected him. The vote of the electors is a mere formality, the party receiving the greater number of electoral votes declaring for its candidate. It's argument is a mere technicality, commonly known as a catch word.

G. H., Quincy, Ill.--What relation is "Jack" and Rose Burke, the boxers? What name did John L. Sullivan call Corbett in the eighteenth round of their fight? What is the age of Fitzsimmons' oldest son? Has Fitzsimmons any brothers?....1. Man and wife. 2. Give it up. 3. Cannot say. 4. Yes; in Newark, N. J.

BOOMING THE BOXING GAME

International Matches Will be Plentiful in America Next Season if Burge, Jordan and Craig Come Over.

"FAKE" PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE "FITZ"-JEFFRIES FIGHT.

McGovern and Palmer Match Ratified by Posting Forfeits--Ruhlin Wants to Fight "Fitz"--Pugilism Not Popular in France.

Willie Always-on-the-spot Brady is in London. I know this because wherever Willie goes there are pyrotechnics, and the years are many and the time remote since English pugilistic circles were so stirred up and excited as now. Willie has appealed to the avaricious soul of the English boxer, and the result will be an influx of foreign talent to our shores, which augurs well for the success of the boxing game in the metropolis during the forthcoming season.

and only the best will be with us, although that doesn't promise much, for the number of first-class men in England now might be counted on the fingers of one hand, and of those two at least, Frank Craig, "the Coffee Cooler," and "Bobby" Dobbs, are Americans. But such as they are we want them over here for international purposes and just to clinch our claim to being the greatest pugilistic nation on top of the earth.

Brady has displayed much wisdom in selecting desirable talent for bouts in America. "Ben" Jordan is offered a purse of $5,000 to meet any American in his class. Of course a legitimate opponent for Jordan would be George Dixon, and everybody is anxious to have them meet again. While not wishing to detract one iota from the credit due to Jordan for defeating Dixon, it must be admitted that the latter was not himself on that eventful night, and fought in poorer form than I had ever seen him fight before. He has been rather more conscientious in his manner of living of late than for some time past, and if another match is made he may be depended upon to be in something like his old-time condition.

Next in demand is "Dick" Burge, to whom a $6,000 purse is offered to meet anybody in his class. Burge's inability to scale the lightweight limit forces him to go into the welterweight division, and there we find "Mysterious Billy" Smith fairly aching for a chance to get at him, or, for that matter, "Joe" Walcott could frame up a pretty good argument at any old weight Burge would care to go at.

For "Bobby" Dobbs and Frank Erne, $4,000 is offered, and I fancy something will be doing in the way of a match when Erne and "Jim" Kennedy, his manager, reach London, in a few weeks. Another offer is $4,000 for a fight between Frank Craig, "the Coffee Cooler," and "Tommy" Ryan, but the latter's pronounced aversion to fighting colored men, presumably for the reason that by advancing this objection he can evade a meeting with "Joe" Walcott, precludes the likelihood of his accepting Craig for an opponent. McCoy, however, wouldn't be averse to gathering in a little sure money by defeating "the Cooler," and in the event of his refusing, there are two or three among the new comers, Root, Moffatt or "Jeff" Thorpe, who would jump at a chance to fight Craig.

Taking it all in all, Brady is making the pugilistic game boom in England, and in all probability some fine international matches will be the outcome of his endeavors.

One of the most flagrant cases of a "fake" ever imposed upon a patient, long suffering, innocent and enduring public is the alleged kinetoscope photographs of the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight, which are now being extensively exhibited throughout this country. The unprincipled promoters of the enterprise had the temerity to have a couple of mixed-ale scrapers, made up with wigs, etc., to represent "Fitz" and Jeffries as they appeared in the ring at Coney Island on that eventful night, and go through a lot of fake fighting manœuvres before a reproducing camera. Nobody who saw the actual fight could be misled or easily fooled by the "fake" exhibition, but unfortunately there are thousands of people who did not see the actual fight, and who, for that matter, never saw either of the fighters, and it is upon the credulity of these unfortunate that the promoters of the "fake" pictures depend for the success of their questionable scheme. To satisfy my own curiosity I attended an exhibit of the pictures one night last week and am willing to say now, without fear of contradiction, that not an incident of the genuine fight was correctly reproduced. The spectators at the ringside in the alleged pictures consist of a lot of street gamins, doubtless hired for the occasion, to make up the assemblage and applaud when called upon to do so. Not a single face among the spectators is recognizable, notwithstanding that all around the ringside were men whose faces are known in every city, town and hamlet from Maine to Oregon.

As a matter of fact, an elaborate attempt was made to photograph the fight at Coney Island. The effort was a failure, however, and the films were absolutely useless. Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Julian, Brady and others who were interested in the success of the enterprise subsequently admitted that the picture taking effort was a failure and lamented the loss of several hundred thousand dollars which they might have profited through a splendid scheme which had been perfected to exhibit the photographs all over the world.

The promoters of the "fake" reproduction are bene-he was in training for that I had him practicing blocking a great deal, and during the fight he did a great deal of it. If he had given more attention to fighting he might have got off better."

True for you, "Billy," and I therefore don't think it would hurt Ruhlin's reputation very much if he lingered around Frisco a little longer and reversed that decision which "Jim" Kennedy recently gained over him. I am not prepared to discuss the merits of the decision, but the record counts one against "Gus," and it would be a kind of a "bum" play to talk fight to a man of "Fitz's" calibre while that blot is not removed from his escutcheon.

Pugilism is not popular in France. All the noted uppercutters of the past decade including John L. the illustrious, James J. Corbett, the dandified exponent of refinedistic art, and "Charley" Mitchell, England's premier boxer, have all exhibited their talents before the effete Parisians for the purpose of inciting interest in the game, but an Arctic frost was a veritable simoom compared with the manner in which their efforts were received. What can we say of a people which discourages the manly art of self-defense, and yet without any scrupulous regard for the humane considerations involved give up $25, the price of a seat to witness a fight between a bull and a lion.

One account says that the spectators were well dressed. Well, that only proves that persons who could not afford to dress well found the price of admission too high. The battle was a failure, for the lion, after being attacked by the bull, tore off one of his ears and quit.

"Fred" Morris, the "Cyclone," has returned to America after an uneventful sojourn in England. He dawned upon my vision the other day arrayed in dazzling finery beside which Solomon's traditional coat of many colors would have looked like thirty cents. He doubtless made an effort to get into everything he owned to impress me with the idea that he had nothing but. His silk cady of the vintage of '95 was polished to the requisite degree of brightness, his patent leather gaiters reflected the glory of his head piece and between the two extremes was a discordant mass

AN AMBITIOUS PUGILIST.

BROOKLYN, July 15, 1899.
DEAR SIR—I would like to get on a match with any 180-pound boy in America, before the club offering the largest purse and a side bet. Hoping for an early reply I remain, "JACK" ANGELL, Care POLICE GAZETTE.

DORSA POSTS A PORFEIT.

32 Grand Street, City,
Manager of Peter Dorsa.

SAYS PALMER IS A STIFF.

CRUM LYNN, Pa., July 17.
"Eddie" Lenny will challenge the winner of the McGovern and Palmer fight, winner take all, before any club. Palmer is a stiff and McGovern knows it. Rotchford beat him over there fair. Lenny, Forbes and Rotchford are all McGovern wants without going abroad. He has been offered purses to meet Lenny and he always got out of it. Lenny is the champion of Canada now. Yours, JAMES F. DOUGHERTY.

A SOLDIER-WALKER ACCEPTS.

FORT ETHAN ALLEN, Vt., July 10, 1899.
RICHARD K. FOX—Dear Sir: I read in the last issue of your valuable paper of the challenge of W. Hoelburg in reference to a walking match. I would like to hear from him, or you could let me know style of a match he wishes. I will walk him a series of races from one-half mile to five miles (heel and toe). If this is agreeable to him please let me know. Yours respectfully,
PRIVATE CHARLES LIKHOOLD,
Troop I, Third U. S. Cavalry.

MARTIN IS NOT A "DUB."

NEW YORK, July 11, 1899.
DEAR SIR—On behalf of "Dever Ed." Martin I would like to get on a match with anybody in the heavyweight class; also would like to state that Martin had but three days' training before he met defeat at the hands of "Bob" Armstrong. He claims the cause was the sudden change of climate. To show you that my man is no counterfeit, I am willing to let him fight a preliminary bout with anybody. I remain respectfully,
SAMUEL GRUHN,
Manager "Denver Ed." Martin.

DONOVAN TALKS BUSINESS-LIKE.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17, 1899.
DEAR SIR—In behalf of "Paddy" Donovan of Philadelphia, 115-pound champion of the East, I wish to challenge any man in the country at 115 pounds; men to weigh in at the ring side, for $1,000 a side. The match is open to anyone, the first come will be the first served. Donovan's two decisions over Casper Leon of New York entitles him to consideration from every man in his class. I have written West, and accepted "Jimmy" Anthony's challenge and expect a favorable reply. In the meantime I wish the other boys of his class to know that he is ready and willing to meet them. The money will be posted in any responsible hands as soon as the first overtures of the match are made. Kindly give this space in your column and oblige, yours truly,

W. L. McCARNEY,
Thirteenth and Filbert Streets.

MUST BE A GOOD LAD.

DEAR SIR—Kindly state in the challenge column of your valuable sporting paper that I will back "Young" Dabut, undefeated bantamweight of Harlem, to box any 112 or 115-pound man in America, barring "Terry" McGovern. Dabut has met and defeated "Harlem Spider" Kelly, three rounds; "Sid" Austin, three rounds; "Jimmy" Rose, six rounds; "Billy" Maynard, ten rounds, and has numerous other victories to his credit. His only defeat was at the hands of Charles Roden. The boys were to have fought to a finish for a side bet in a Westchester roadhouse, but the bout terminated in the twelfth round, Dabut breaking his left hand on Roden's head. I will back Dabut for any amount, the bout to take place in private or before any club offering a purse. I remain respectfully yours,
CHARLES WYNNE,
Manager for "Young" Dabut,
200 East One Hundred and Sixth Street,
New York.

SHOT DEAD IN A CHURCH.

A Prominent Man of Dallas, Tex., Killed at the Altar.

Prof. William Lipscomb, principal of the Dallas (Texas) High School, was shot to death in a church about 10 o'clock the other night by John T. Carlisle, former chief janitor of the school. A revival meeting was in progress in the church, and Prof. Lipscomb was seated on the first bench in front of the altar. While a hymn was being sung by the congregation, Carlisle arose from a back seat near the door, and walking quietly forward proceeded until he stood beside Prof. Lipscomb. Quick as a flash he drew a 38-calibre pistol and fired.

Lipscomb uttered a cry of pain and grappled with Carlisle. Others then seized the shooter and disarmed him. Prof. Lipscomb fell unconscious in the aisle, but soon rallied and spoke soothingly to his frantic wife. Carlisle was hurried away and locked up in the county jail. He appeared to be too much under the influence of liquor to make a statement.

Physicians who were present pronounced the wound mortal, and he died in less than an hour, with his head resting on his wife's lap.

A child may inherit a parent's strength, it may inherit his weakness. There is food for sober thought expressed in that sentence. Strength is a natural condition, weakness the reverse. For thirty years I have been showing men the road to strength. I have demonstrated a natural remedy to be the true remedy. I have made a specialty of nervous and organic weaknesses in men as a result of youthful errors or later excesses, such as Drains, Impotency, Lame Back, Varicocele, &c. I could not give you as good service as some doctors in fevers, or pneumonia, or small-pox. I am no authority on obstetrics or tuberculosis. Of course I studied these subjects, but this is a day of specialties. I know the nervous and glandular system of men. That's my strong card. I treat weak men, and weak men only. In the beginning, let me say I use no drugs. When I take your money I want to give you value in return. I couldn't do that and give you drugs for weakness. They stimulate. back into a worse condition. You are weak, laws, but she is magnanimous, she is forgiving. I will ask her to give that strength back to you. I am the inventor of an appliance which puts in your hands a means of using Nature's great restorer, Electricity.

It is the famous Dr. Sanden Electric Belt, with attachment for men. Mind what I say. In ten years from date this Belt will be the world's remedy for such. This is no boast. I received 5,000 testimonials last year. All absolute cures after all else had failed. The treatment is most common sense. It appeals to better judgment. It is the long continued use of the pure galvanic current which does the work. Ordinary batteries are worthless. They do not generate the volume, and cannot be applied long enough. That's why I invented my Electric Belt. It was to fill a want. You put it on when you go to bed, take it off next morning. That's what does the work. Seven hours of Nature's strengthener each day for ninety days, with a little sound advice to suit your case. That is all. That will bring you back to strength.
